Workshop structure

The workshop will take place over two days and will consist of two types of highly interactive sessions:

Paper Discussion Roundtables: In these sessions, registered participants will receive feedback on their submitted manuscripts from facilitators, along with suggestions on how to publish them. In these sessions, each participant will be asked to peer-review one or several papers of other participants to adequately prepare for the discussions.

Editor Panel: Current and former journal editors share their insights from handling manuscripts originating in different countries. They will provide participants with an overview of the different journals where they serve. The Editors will provide general information about publishing in these journals, such as what makes a successful paper, the main reasons that papers are rejected, and strategies for addressing the core challenges that Editors and reviewers see in rejected papers.

PDW Logistics

The workshop is free of charge and refreshments/meals will be provided. Travel and accommodation have to be organized and covered by participants. Please note that places are limited and priority will be given to papers from early career researchers. Scholars interested in participating should submit a full paper following AOM submission guidelines (<https://aom.org/events/annual-meeting/submitting/submission-guidelines#paper-submission-guidelines>). Papers must be written in English and all types of articles (quantitative, qualitative, theoretical, etc.) are welcome. The manuscript can be either a recently completed paper or one that has been previously rejected and may benefit from senior scholars' advice and guidance. Full papers should be submitted to Tomas Farchi (tfarchi@iae.edu.ar) using the subject line 'PDW Buenos Aires'. Deadline for submissions is August 12, 2022.
